Application of Steel To Modern Living Shown

The varied and highly successful applications of stainless steel in all phases of today's modern living were vividly outlined in a color movie, "An Orchid to Mr. Jordan," when members of the Rotary Club viewed the picture at the Elks Home yesterday afternoon.

The production, a United States Steel Company release, depicted the care and precision employed in the manufacture of stainless steel, and then graphically portrayed its many uses in industry, medicine, farm, home, profession, building and construction, transportation, aircraft, etc.

CAPTURES MAN AS HE HEARS POLICE DRAMA

Chief Seader Sees Man Trying Door of Neighbor, Jos. Gallagher

HAD A STOLEN CAR

Relaxing in the living-room of his home, listening to "Mr. Keen," tracer of lost persons on a popular radio program, Chief of Police Joseph Seader, Bristol township, last evening glanced through the window of his home and saw a man trying the front door of the residence of Joseph Gallagher, 721 Newportville road, Bristol township.

The man then went to the back of the Gallagher residence and tried the back door, then again tried the front door. He was then approached by Seader, who noticed that a large wrench stuck out of the suspect's hip pocket. Seader, at first, thought that the man was another neighbor of his, but then noticed that he was wearing glasses. He knew that his first supposition had been wrong.

Business Girls Hosts To Mothers at Banquet

Bristol Business Girls' Club held a Mother's day banquet Tuesday evening, in the First Baptist Church, instead of the Travel Club home, which was being used as a polling place. Dinner was served to 41 mothers and daughters. Each mother was presented with a pink carnation, the favors were pink baskets with mints and nuts. The Girl Scouts of Troop 50, Patrol 1, from the Bristol Methodist Church, served the dinner.

Mrs. John Leslie Kilcoyne, counselor, welcomed the guests. Mrs. Joseph Boyle, president, asked the blessing. The menu served was: Orange and grapefruit cocktail, chicken ala king in patty-shells, lima beans, glazed carrots, tossed salad and relishes, rolls and coffee, mints and nuts, ice cream and cookies. After dinner, the vice president, Mrs. Florence Jeffries, presented gifts to three lucky mothers: Mrs. Minnie Dewitt, Edgely; Mrs. Alonzo Vansant, Bristol; and Mrs. Elizabeth Boyle, Bristol.

A skit entitled "Not a Man in the House," was presented by the daughters. The characters included: Mrs. Laura Dyer, Mrs. Florence Jeffries, Miss Rachel Clancioso, Mrs. Helen Howell and Mrs. Ellen Volland. It was much enjoyed. Mrs. Kilcoyne showed colored slides of a recent cruise she and her husband had taken to Haiti, Cuba and Jamaica. Mrs. Kilcoyne also displayed and explained some of the various articles they had brought back from the different islands. At the end a picture was shown to the members of the club being installed at their April meeting.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kierman (Distributed by International News Service)

The Senate's gambling investigation is slow getting started but with $150,000 to spend it shouldn't take too long to find a bookie or a floating crap game.

Or I can turn over my surveys which indicate that the bookies are giving their customers a better break than Congress does.

Now the House Committee is planning a 10 per cent snatch on a $2 dividend and you don't even get a horse to play.

And if it's a 50 cent dividend they'll take the nickel and you can argue about it... it's your nickel.

For a government that claims to be the friend of the people it's into more people deeper than any other friends they've got.

And while they're investigating gambling... that's no sure thing we're playing over seas with the pot getting bigger and bigger.

START DRIVE HERE ON MOSQUITOES' BREEDING SPOTS

First Step Scheduled To Get Under Way Here Tomorrow

TO DO HAND SPRAYING

Survey of The District Has Been Made and Area Mapped

"Operation Mosquitoes" is scheduled to start tomorrow. A crew of high school students under the direction of Joseph Smith, biology teacher at Bristol high school, will begin manual spraying, using portable back pack sprayers with a compound formulated by Dr. Frank Maughan, of the Rohm & Haas Co. The first districts to be covered will be those that can be reached by hand spray.

Arrangements have been made to have the large areas, airplane sprayed. Aero Dusting Corp. will take care of this work.

Last week, Smith, in company with Earl Mullin, Bristol Chamber of Commerce Mosquito Committee man; J. S. Lynn, representative of the Bristol Fish and Game Association; John Hortmann, of the Aero Dusting Corp., and Major Geis, consultant to the Dept. of Public Health of Pennsylvania, travelled Bristol and its environs, earmarking the districts to be sprayed and what procedure to use.

"A good mosquito operation is only possible with the co-operation we get," says Herman Silber, chairman of the Chamber's Committee. He asks Bristol to lay down the following 10 commandments to help this committee do its job:

Eliminate all standing water. Cover rain barrels with mosquito-proof screens. Seal cesspools tightly. Drain clogged roof gutters and flat roofs. Cut up and take away old tires. Keep wheelbarrows tilted. Oil sewer inlets, cisterns and excavations weekly. Change water in troughs, fountains or bird baths twice weekly. Empty cans or other water holding receptacles. Be sure that all your screens fit tightly and that screen mesh is not larger than 16 to the inch.

TAXPAYERS GET THE BILL

President Truman has returned from a "non-political" trip across the continent which took him into a score of states, covered a distance of 7,000 miles, and provided Mr. Truman the opportunity to make innumerable speeches defending his administration against charges of extravagance and communist leanings.

For this service the railroads which moved his special train were paid $35,000, the bill going to the taxpayers because Mr. Truman said this was not a political venture. The railroads lost $200,000, the cost of safeguarding the train.

The $35,000 train fare is a small part of the cost to taxpayers of this junket. They paid the salaries and expenses of approximately 60 federal payrollers, who went along to serve the President and keep him comfortable. The claim that the trip was non-political was an obvious fraud in view of the fact that it was largely for the purpose of selling the fair deal administration to the voters in the face of congressional elections, the outcome of which will determine the fate of Truman proposals.

The climax came at Chicago, where the faithful raised more than $250,000 to stage a political fiesta. They were told contributions to the fund for the Chicago celebration are deductible for income tax purposes, as were those made at the $100-a-plate dinner recently held in Washington.

This loss in income tax revenue will also be made up by the taxpayers, the long-suffering American people whose bounty makes Truman spending possible.

NEW PARKING PLAN

In New Brunswick, N. J., the Chamber of Commerce has developed a new off-street parking plan, and the city has authorized the sale of $300,000 in non-interest-bearing bonds to finance the facilities in the downtown section. Other cities and towns, bedeviled as never before by parking problems, will watch the New Brunswick plan with interest.

The plan takes the place of an earlier proposal which reached the point of enactment by the city council. By that plan the same amount was to be raised by special assessments on properties that would be benefited. That was simple taxation—and who was to determine who would benefit and how much? Apparently the adoption of this idea stirred up all sorts of belated doubts and fears among the merchants and other businessmen.

But the second plan went over with a bang. The bonds were snapped up. Apparently the purchasers felt their money, tied up, would be perfectly safe. Dividends could be expected to come in the form of increased trade by customers able to find spots to park conveniently. Nobody can feel he is being unfairly assessed or taxed, the whole thing being voluntary.

Many cities are, at long last, waking up to the necessity of providing parking space for automobiles. Merely banning them from curbside parking as a means of expediting traffic is not a solution to the problem.

Commerce Departments; Senate rejection of the latter has been recommended. The Senate is expected to defeat today a closure move against the filibuster on civil rights. The President said he wanted an absolutely independent Congress rid of "obstructionists" of both parties. A House committee approved a one-year extension of rent controls under which Federal powers would expire on December 31 in localities not voting to retain them until June 30, 1951.

found to have a pocketful of keys for automobiles, Yale locks and ordinary locks. He then told Seader that his car was parked near "Grundy's corner."

Upon further questioning, it was found that the car had allegedly been stolen in Maryland from a smoke-house proprietor. There was approximately 30 pounds of smoked meat in the back of the machine. Benjamin, according to Seader, admitted that he had been in jail in Chicago, and that en route from Chicago here he had stolen three cars. Maryland authorities are planning to come here to question Benjamin who is being held at the Bristol police station to await the action of the district attorney.

7 Former Presidents Honored by Sorosis

LANGHORNE, May 19 — Seven former presidents of Langhorne Sorosis were honored yesterday on the occasion of Past Presidents Day, when final meeting of the local women's club for the season took the form of a "pink tea."

President Mrs. Horace P. Townsend gave a brief account of each administration. There are 12 past presidents who are living. The following of these were able to accept invitations to attend yesterday's event: Mrs. George Cliff (also a former president of Bucks Co. Federation of Women's Clubs), who served Sorosis from 1917 to 1920; Mrs. Margaret York, Bensalem township, 1928; Mrs. J. Nelson Allison, 1931-33; Mrs. Lynn Harrington, 1933-35; Mrs. Lester Ranson, 1943-45; Mrs. Phillip G. Lewis, 1945-47; Mrs. Henry Ridge, 1947-48. The president gave a brief account of the sessions of the state federation convention, held recently in Philadelphia.

A dramatic reader, Mrs. Donald Eames, of Yardley, delighted with a thumbnail sketch of Emily Kimbrough, and reviewed her last book, "It Gives Me Great Pleasure."

Special music included flute and piano solo by students of George School, Newtown, directed by Mr. Steele.

The tea was in charge of Mrs. Edwin Laning and Mrs. Franklin Pennell.

On June 8th club members will make a trip to Bethayres gardens.

RAT FIGHT

PARIS. — (INS) — France has declared war on the common black-alley rat. The front-lines are in the crowded, old streets of Paris, where rats are consuming or destroying merchandise officially estimated at nearly 1,000 tons daily. now. That's what I intend to keep on fighting for.

You can't have good jobs or good wages if the goods we produce must compete with commodities made by people who get only a fraction of your wages. And when enough of those goods, produced by cheap labor, are dumped on our shores, then you don't have any job at all.

For more than 15 years, we have operated under a so-called reciprocal trade system. Under that system our tariffs have been falling lower and lower and lower. Today they are lower than at any other time in fifty years.

The protection formerly given to the American worker is being wiped out, slowly but surely.

Nevertheless, the State Department announced, just the other day, that we are about to make still further and deeper tariff cuts.

Beginning September 28, the State Department announced, conferences will be held in England for the purpose of discussing tariff concessions on 2500 items.

Seventeen nations in South America, Central America, Europe, Asia and Africa will take part. One of them is the Federal Republic of Western Germany.

You may be sure that the outcome of the conferences will be a further flood of cheap labor imports to compete with goods produced by our workers and our farmers.

How does that affect Pennsylvania? I'm going to tell you.

But first let me say something else to the millions of workers in our State, particularly those who have jobs in manufacturing plants.

If there is any question in your minds that these tariff reductions endanger your jobs—well, just ask your unions.

I've been hearing from union leaders. From the United Mine Workers, from the A. F. of L., and from the C. I. O. Your unions, too, are worried about your jobs. As long ago as 1947 and 1948 I was hearing from the leaders of locals of glass and pottery workers in Western Pennsylvania crying out for protection for the jobs of their members.

Let's consider a few specific items, and I'm talking now directly to the skilled watchmakers of Lancaster, Pennsylvania.

In the middle of the 1930's, the United States was producing about 53 per cent of the fine watches sold in this country—the high quality, jeweled watches.

That was before the reciprocal trade agreements began to go into effect.

Today about 85 per cent of our jeweled watches and watch movements are imported.

Today the Hamilton watch factory and the Elgin plants in the mid-west are the last two jeweled watch companies operating in the United States. There was a third until recently when the Waltham Watch Company went broke under the pressure of foreign competition. Hundreds of highly skilled American craftsmen lost their jobs.

That is what happens to the well paid American workers when the bars are dropped.

But that's not all. The fine watch industry is important to our national defense. It builds up a reservoir of skilled men who can work on precision instruments that are vital to modern warfare.

In the last war, Germany drew heavily on the skilled Swiss watchmakers for such work. Switzerland furnished the bulk of the precision instruments for the German war machine.

We were able to furnish our own. But what will happen if the cold war should turn into a hot war? What will happen if the Red Army sweeps across Europe?

Well, I expect the neutral Swiss will make precision instruments and sell them to the Russians. They'd have no other market.

But what would happen to us? How would we obtain the necessary precision instruments?

If you don't know the answer, I suggest you ask the State Department.

Yes, the jobs of our watchmakers and the skills needed to defend our country are being lost. They are pawns in this foreign policy game played by the State Department.

The folks of western Pennsylvania hardly need to be told what has been happening to the China and pottery and glass industries. Men laid off. Men working part time.

I've heard from the unions out there and I know. Their jobs, too, have been made pawns in this game.

And now they announce that in September, they are going to cut still more the tariffs on textiles, pottery, glass, china, chemicals, rayon, paper, leather goods, clocks, fish products, wines, and dairy products.

I wonder how many more Pennsylvania jobs will be lost in that fancy shuffle. I wonder how many Pennsylvania factories will be forced to post notices that they will be able to work only two or three days a week.

In our State thousands of families are dependent upon the mining and preparation of coal for their daily bread and the roof over their heads. Things haven't been too good for the miners. We all know that. There are several reasons for this, and I'm not blaming the reciprocal trade agreements for all of the present unemployment in coal mining.

But I am blaming it for a part of the trouble. I am not alone in that stand. Nor does my support come from rich men who own mines. It comes from labor. It comes from the United Mine Workers, the railroad brotherhoods and the C. I. O. oil workers.

This Administration has let so much oil come in from foreign countries that the unions are up in arms. The coal people estimate that, nationwide, the heavy importation of cheap oil—as allowed under the trade agreements—will throw 50,000 miners out of work.

The railroads that haul the coal will have fewer jobs for railroad men in our State and in the remainder of the country. An estimate has been made that up to 50,000 railroad men may also lose their jobs.

And still they're going to lower rates more and more, reducing another 2,500 duties in September. I say it is time for every one in Pennsylvania to think it over!

Eastern Pennsylvania is a leading center of hat manufacturing. That industry is in grave danger. Union officials have warned that the American hat industry is being crushed and the workers are faced with the loss of their jobs. Why?

Because of the imports coming largely from Czechoslovakia behind the Iron Curtain. Thanks to the sharp cut in tariffs, the import of felts jumped 300 per cent last year.

The textile workers in Pennsylvania and in New England, as well as those of other states, are feeling the squeeze which is the consequence of this never ending game of give-away—I mean give-away of your jobs.

The farmer is feeling the weight. Chester County and Delaware County, most important producers of mushrooms. Tariffs are being cut down to nothing on fresh and canned mushrooms. They are coming in—in great quantity.

We have millions upon millions of pounds of surplus dried eggs stored away in caves. Yet we are importing dried eggs from China. We have more butter in storage than we know what to do with, but we are importing butter. I hardly need mention the great surplus of potatoes which we are destroying. Yet we are importing potatoes.

The government has bought up vast quantities of wheat, corn, barley, rye, and other agricultural commodities. But, under the reciprocal trade agreements, we are importing them.

There's trouble ahead for our farmers in that kind of situation. It can't spell anything but trouble. But, in September, the jobs and livelihood of our farmers will be made a pawn again—when the State Department further reduces the tariffs on hundreds of farm commodities.

When I ask here in Washington why we do these things, I get the same kind of answers that many of you receive. Our people are told that we are strengthening our friends and allies. With that answer, the State Department seeks to justify its action.

If that is so, I ask—and you have every right to ask—why are the jobs of our people to be sacrificed to imports produced by slave labor in Communist Russia and the other countries behind the Iron Curtain?

Why are we letting them dump their surpluses into our markets? Why do we let this slave labor merchandise undersell the product of the American worker?

Is Russia our friend and ally? Are Bulgaria, and Rumania, and Czechoslovakia, and Poland and Communist China our friends and allies?

Why should we strengthen them? We have been told that what we are buying from those countries are strategic materials—things we must stockpile for our defense.

The truth is, my fellow Pennsylvanians, we are getting practically no strategic materials from those countries now.

Here are some of the things we have been importing from Iron Curtain countries—furs, shoes, rubber footwear, walnuts and canned crab meat.

Now I ask you—Is canned Russian crabmeat a strategic material?

Are walnuts from Communist-controlled Manchuria a secret weapon?

Will we be unable to defend ourselves in the next war without rubber overshoes from Czechoslovakia? There has been convincing proof that most of what we get from Russia is turned out by slave labor and dumped in the United States to cause confusion in our markets and hurt our labor. We have a law in this country that we may bar goods produced by foreign slave labor.

I say we should invoke that law to protect the jobs of our people.

The Russians buy no furs from us. They don't let our manufacturers or our farmers dump surpluses in their country. They don't buy anything which will result in unemployment for their people.

Why, then, do we allow the United States to be made a dumping ground for the Iron Curtain countries? Why do we allow that kind of competition?

And remember, we are going to get more of it if the State Department further drops our tariffs.

These trade agreements are not the only concern of our workers this year.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has begun hearings to determine whether the Senate should ratify the International Trade Organization charter. It is interesting that only two of the other 55 countries that took part in drafting the charter, have so far ratified it.

The I. T. O., among other things, would force further tariff reductions among the countries, and would establish rules to govern and limit some types of tariffs.

Of course, there is one invisible but ever present factor. We have learned from the reciprocal trade agreements, that other nations do not reciprocate. In case after case, other countries have withdrawn their concessions to us. Nevertheless, they continue to enjoy the full benefits of our concessions.

I fear that the same situation would develop under an I. T. O. and still more Pennsylvania jobs would be lost.

I am strongly in favor of helping the free nations that are in need of assistance to restore stability and to raise their standards of living.

Whether all of its objectives are achieved or not the outpouring of American wealth and resources under the Marshall Plan will be recorded as the greatest humanitarian effort in world history.

But I do not believe that the American worker, in addition to being burdened with high direct and hidden taxes, should be deprived of his job to bolster a foreign policy which has not distinguished itself with outstanding success in the past.

I repeat, the best guarantee of security is a good job at good wages.

This is Ed Martin, speaking to you from the nation's Capital. I will be with you again in two weeks.

ARE YOUR RECORDS FULLY PROTECTED?

If fire wiped out your business—as happens to many companies in this country every day—would you have the records to prove your loss? Remember your fire insurance contract obligates you to produce the inventory, bills, invoices and other factual evidence on which the settlement will be made.

Without such records after a fire your day in court would find you empty handed—you would have to accept an adjustment instead of a full settlement.

Mothers, Daughters Dine; Program of Films, Music

The annual mother and daughter banquet, Bristol Presbyterian church, was held Tuesday evening at the church. The tables were decorated with cut flowers and vases of pink and white carnations. The program was planned for 121. Mrs. Charles Quigley served as toastmistress. The blessing was read by Mrs. Russell DeLong. With Mrs. George Kemmerer in charge, members of the Alpha Bible Class prepared the following menu: Tomato juice, roast beef, gravy, mashed potatoes, lima beans, pickled cabbage, rolls, butter, coffee, ice cream and cookies.

The dinner was served by the mens Bible class. Group singing as led by Miss Marian Schwartz. The annual awards were given to: Mrs. Justina Mahan, the oldest mother present who received a bouquet; Mrs. Fred Weik, Jr., youngest mother, who received a box of candy; and Mrs. William Brownlee, mother with the most daughters, gift certificate.

The group then retired to the main auditorium for the program which included two films, shown through courtesy of the Bell Telephone Co., and selections by Bristol Male Glee Club.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

By JOE ELBERSON

Resents statement . . . received the following rather sharp letter last Saturday protesting an item I wrote in this column last week. Here it is:

"Dear Mr. Elbertson:
I wish to call to your attention a statement made in your sports column this date (May 12th, 1950).

Being an ardent outboard fan and boating enthusiast, I resent your stating that oil and gasoline are 'very detrimental' to fish life.

It may interest you to know that the University of Michigan recently completed an extensive test proving that regardless of what size lakes outboards and small cruisers are used, fish life and fish spawn is not in the least bit bothered and tests have proven that the oil and gasoline has no apparent effect on fishing. This article has appeared in at least two of the latest boating and outboard periodicals.

I think a correction is in order.
(Signed) George A. Hussey, 3rd,
503 Radcliffe St.,
Bristol, Pa."

Well sir, Mr. Hussey, that was quite a cordial letter, and I feel I should make a few observations.

First of all, if you remember the facts of articles you read as accurately as you remember the correct spelling of my name (with my column in front of you), your powers of observation could stand sharpening.

And since when does a test or two by someone from Michigan arbitrarily settle such an issue, particularly when the thinking of Pennsylvanians is contrary to said findings?

Chances are the Michigan tests were conducted on a very large body of water, with great depth and a good flow. Our wee, little Silver Lake (approximately 55 acres) has no great depth and a very slow movement of water. And here is where oil and gasoline is very detrimental to fish life. If it doesn't kill them it certainly drives them to sections which are more adequate and ideal for taking their precious life-giving oxygen from the water. And remember, too, that the Pennsylvania Fish Commission owns Silver Lake for the recreation of the fishing fraternity. So we certainly don't want the stocked fish killed or driven from its waters.

Aside from the fish angle, here are a couple of laws which make it pretty difficult for anyone who respects the rights and privileges of others to operate motorboats on Silver Lake:

"No motorboat of more than five (5) horsepower shall be operated in the inland waters of this Commonwealth in locations where such waters are one hundred eighty (180) feet or less in width."

"To operate a motorboat more than eight (8) miles per hour within one hundred (100) feet of shore, or within one hundred (100) feet of a buoyed fishing ground, anchored fishing boat or pleasure craft, channel or bathing beach is unlawful."

Those two laws make it rather difficult to operate a motorboat legally in Silver Lake.

If you have been operating an outboard motorboat in Silver Lake, Mr. Hussey, may I suggest you try the Delaware River?

Responsibility rests with the parents . . . normal American boys naturally want guns. The number of small-bore rifles and air guns in the hands of carefree Pennsylvania youths has increased tremendously in recent years. That poses a problem because, unfortunately, in most cases safe gun handling has not been taught these boy gun-owners. The dangerousness of the present-day high velocity air rifle should not be underrated. Not only small creatures are killed and panes of glass broken through the use of it. Painful injuries to humans—even loss of eyesight—are often attributable to the reckless shooting of BB pellets.

Packages in which 22 caliber bullets are sold bear the warning "Dangerous up to one mile." This alone indicates that the small-bore rifle certainly should not be considered in the toy classification. Newspaper articles bear this out all too frequently. They tell of bullets striking persons in towns, of bullets ricocheting off water into homes or of injury or death caused by a rifle in the hands of a child who aimed a gun at a playmate and pulled the trigger "just in fun." Many birds and animals, too, die at the hands of young "Dead-eye Dicks" who must have live targets to prove their prowess.

With the coming of warm weather, youngsters take to the open—often carrying a 22 rifle or a BB gun. Frequently, untrained lads fire their guns in town or close to human habitation, too. When persons are injured through their irresponsible acts, boys who did the shooting are commonly called "juvenile delinquents." It has been well said that in this connection any delinquency should really be charged to "problem parents" who shirked their responsibilities. Many parents apparently feel blissfully secure in the belief that "Junior wouldn't shoot anything he shouldn't." (Since when have normal youngsters become such cherubs?)

Many persons believe that grown boys should have a 22 rifle or an air gun in order to learn the proper use and the danger aspects that accompany the firing of a weapon. They have a good argument. It should be recognized, however, that the responsibility for the proper training and the restricting of juvenile gun totes rests originally and finally with their parents.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR YOUTH LEAGUE HERE THIS SEASON

Managers interested in Bristol Youth Baseball League met in the Diamond Sporting Goods Store, Mill street, last night and discussed plans for this season.

On Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week, the managers will commence the job of reviewing the rules and regulations of the circuit. Time set for the meetings is 8:30 o'clock.

Managers present and the teams they will represent were: Herman Steubing, Newportville; Harry McGuckin, Croydon; Stan Lelinski, Harriman A. C.; Joseph Binkley, Terrace, Wesley Williamson, who managed Bristol Township last season, was present and will definitely have a team in the circuit but has not decided under what name his team will play.

The St. Ann's A. A. team, of the Trenton Industrial League, will attempt to make it three straight this evening when it meets the Trenton Warriors on Hetzel field, Trenton, at six o'clock.

Manager "Spike" Scordia's team travels to Wetzel field, Trenton, Sunday afternoon to play the Michalski nine.

The Voltz - Texaco - Flannery's game, of the Tri-County League, was called off due to rain last evening. The tilt will be re-scheduled for later in the season.

Sunday afternoon, the Voltz-men will meet the Willow Grove nine on Memorial field at 2:30 o'clock. Voltz holds a 28-0 win over the Willow Grove team.

GAME CALLED OFF

The Bristol Softball League game between Fifth Ward and Jefferson, scheduled for last evening, was called off due to rain. The game will be replayed at a later date.

No league tilt is scheduled for this evening but on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock on Leedom's field, the Lusitano team of Tullytown will play the No. 1 Fire Company contingent.
